Project name: Flowers in the sunlight

My art piece is called, "Flowers in the Sunlight." It includes heaps of different colors that somehow all come together beautifully. The bright sunset in the background gives the picture a sense of depth that wouldn't have been achieved without it right in the middle. That same sunset also gives the picture a difference between the background and the foreground. The flowers are all made up of unique lines, curves, and colors, making them each perfect just how they are. I have always loved the beauty of flowers. Each of their individual unique traits leave me in awe every time I see some. That is why I always take pictures of them. The bright variety of this photo brings me so much joy and I hope it may bring some to others as well.
